

Forming close Relationships

Someone once said 'Birthdays are filled with yesterday's memories, today's joys, and tomorrow's dreams. Yes, Birthdays are moments to be grateful and I recall the many blessings I received from the Lord and from so many people. Today I am reminded of the people who have been with me through thick and thin and those in new relationships. Speaking of relationships Ezekiel Isaac Maleker says, "Merging, that is, forming close relationships with others and God should cause us to enhance our personalities and not to destroy them... When personalities "merge", they must respect each other's independence and at the same time, feel one with each other. It is difficult to be close and distant at the same time, but that is what a good relationship is all about. It is also very difficult to maintain a good relationship when feelings of resentment and hatred start to creep in and are allowed to take over. That is why we find that even in families, there are instances when siblings do not talk to each other or former good friends will not even shake hands because of a trivial incident that happened in the past. In order to be successful in any relationship, each individual's views must be allowed to be expressed... Since all relationships are dynamic, we must constantly work towards keeping them positive."

As I celebrate yet another year of God's gift of life to me I remember the moments when I was discouraged in the face of recurrent trials, challenges and what appear to be insurmountable difficulties. In such moments we tend to throw up our hands and say: "I give up! I can't manage! I can't take it anymore." But if we remember that God and others are with us, things are bound to change; and I have seen that happen. Today I realize how blessed I have been. In fact I am overwhelmed with all the blessings that I received from God who has called me to live in the light, to believe the surprising, amazing, and staggeringly puzzling truth that I wasn't made for darkness but for light. For His countless blessings I say 'THANK YOU' God. I also say 'THANK YOU' to one and all who have been a part of my life.

Ultimate Reckonings

The extent to which the Church ought to be involved or not involved in matters explicitly political in nature has been a question debated from time immemorial. In times such as these, when the country finds itself on the threshold of a General Elections, the import of which can by no means be underrated, the question assumes added urgency and significance. In a place like Tripura where Politics seems to have a way of making everything else subservient to it, the Church, at pre-election times, gets to see with some degree of amusement and astonishment, the sheer vigor and passion of some its members who are otherwise considered 'sluggish' and 'ordinary' at best. The Church in Tripura has hitherto been, by and large, a mere onlooker on the political rigmarole that keeps thickening day by day in the State that comprises our Diocese. That few of its adherents occupy political centre-stage is perhaps no reason for the Church to change its stand. But perhaps, the near-absolute manner in which politics impact all aspects of daily life is reason enough to make a pause and take at least a cursory look at what ails political progress of its faithful and their fellow-practitioners. Soon enough, it would become clear that 'inability to unite' is one reason that curtails progress especially among regional parties here in Tripura. Despite having similar objectives and needs, they are easily prone to fragment and become ineffectual.

There seems to be an acute shortfall in the ability to sacrifice short term gains for long term benefits, to give up a little, to give in a little, to forge alliances with those who differ only in inessentials, and in the ability to give and take keeping common good in mind.

Lack of these traits, which undoubtedly are eminently 'Christian' in nature are showing in the procedures of Tripura's regional parties. The social scenario of Tripura makes it imperative for leadership to take its strength from the kind of faith in the risen Lord that we find in Acts of the Apostles, where despite differences, we are told, believers were 'in one heart and mind'(Acts 4:32). Formation of its men and women in these Christian virtues is certainly the forte of the Church more than anyone else's.

The Church does not engage in Party Politics. Perhaps that's precisely why the Church in Tripura needs to take more seriously the formation of select lay leaders from its fold to a leadership that can effectively withstand their propensity to short-sightedness and fragmentation.

AMBASSA PARISHNew Way of celebrating Christmas

Ambassa; December 25, 2018: Catholic Church, Ambassa

celebrated Christmas a new way. Parishioners collected cloths and blankets and distributed to poor families in 4 different villages. Prior to this, Parish council members decided much ahead of time to collect the cloths and distribute them to the poor. We received more than 50 families' names for the cloth distribution. Members of mothers association came forward to bundle them according to family wise. On 16th December cloths were distributed in Masurai para and Hadukolok Para. And in Raipasa clothes and blankets were distributed on 24th December and on Christmas day clothes and blankets were distributed to Kolasori village families. Clothes were distributed irrespective of religion and denomination to the poorest families. Many appreciated the remarkable social work by the Catholic Church in this winter season. News bureau, Ambassa

Diocese News Nuggets'Home Mission' at Agartala Diocese

Bethany Sisters from different parts of the North East Province gathered for Home Mission to give Jesus to the people in the remote Villages of Kathalcherra and Depacherra Parish. It was an effort to go back to the original roots of spreading the Gospel by being with the people. 15 Sisters at Kathalcherra and 12 in Depacherra were able to give a spark of the light of Jesus to the 11 Villages (5 at Kathalcherra and 6 at Depacherra). 263 families were visited by the Sisters in both the places. They spend the days in visiting the families, praying with them, listening to them, and praying over the sick. They gathered the people for instruction and prayer. At Kathalcherra Sisters joined the Bible Camp which was arranged for the children of the Parish. They animated the Sessions, made them more lively and energetic through their action songs, singing and dancing besides teaching and catechizing them. People were very happy with the presence of Sisters in their Villages. The people are simple, receptive and were generous to share their time and resources. We are thankful for Fr Lancy CSC, Fr Prasad, the Parish Priests of Kathalcherra and Depacherra Parishes for their generous support and encouragement. Sr. Sandhya BS, the Provincial Counselor coordinated the event. Sr. Judith, BS

Pope at WYD Vigil Addresses 600,000 young people at Panama City's Metro

By Seàn-Patrick Lovett: Three lives. Three stories. Three testimonies to faith, hope and love. These were the inspirations behind Pope Francis' reflections to the 600,000 young people gathered for the World Youth Day Vigil in Metro Park. Life stories, and love stories. "The Lord is the first to say 'yes'", said the Pope. "And He wants us to say 'yes' along with Him", as He invites us "to be part of a love story". Pope Francis presented Mary as the supreme example of how to say 'yes' and to "trust in the love and promises of God". It is this, he said, that makes Mary, "the 'influencer' of God".

"Yes" to embracing life. "Yes" to building community. "Yes" to being guardians. Willingness to say "Yes"

"Are you willing to say 'yes'?", challenged the Pope. "Are you willing to be an 'influencer' like Mary?" he asked. "Only love makes us more human and fulfilled", he concluded. So do not be afraid to tell Jesus you want to be "part of His love story in this world".
